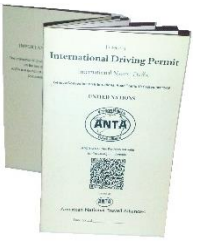
INTERNATIONAL DRIVING PERMIT

Dear fellow Traveller,

Thank you for your interest in the ANTA International Driving Permit (IDP). This permit is valid, as per the Geneva Convention on International Road Traffic, signed into international law on September 19, 1949. This is an international treaty that regulates motor traffic, of which the United States became a member of in 1952.



With this permit you can lawfully drive in over 200 countries, including the united States (with the exception of Indonesia—its country of origin).

When using the permit you are to stand in honor and follow all the traffic laws of the jurisdiction you are traveling in.

IDP's can be used at rental car agencies, to board commercial airlines, for banking and check cashing, to show proof of age, and as general ID and even to obtain a commercial trucking job if done correctly with a foreign trust. Be aware that some people working in agencies are not familiar with the IDP as they may not have seen it before, and it is highly recommended that you carry the ANPC International Traveler Card Along with your IDP. It is best for you to carry the Dept. of State Authentication papers (located on www.AmericanNationals.me) for the ANPC traveler card as well as the copy of the Geneva Convention on International Road Traffic. Be aware that the full Geneva Convention on International Road Traffic is imbedded in the front barcode on your IDP itself. Anyone using a QR Code Reader App can access it directly from the QR Barcode. Since ANTA is a branch diverging from ANPC, the IDP also includes a QR code embedded with the ANPC International Notices also.

The IDP issued by ANTA is a legitimate and authorized "booklet style" permit as the international treaty stipulates. Physically, it is about the size of a passport, printed in nine different languages, containing the official seal of ANTA, along with your photograph, autograph, and other pertinent information, all inside its own clear protective sleeve.

Anyone interested in the IDP can contact us via www.AmericanNationals.org

The IDP is a versatile document that is highly respected worldwide. It is valid for 5 years and costs $200. The applicant also receives information on how to become an International Traveller, tips on how to avoid most traffic citations, and privacy through the setup of foreign trusts.
